TAKE NOTICE,

THAT I am to be sold on such terms, that the purchaser need not advance any cash, unless he pleases, till it is earned by my services, provided no accident happens me; or, if you please, I am to be farmed out for two years, and not less. I am a bright bay, full 15½ hands high, of noble descent, my name is TRIMMER—I was got by Hall's imported horse Eclipse, my dam, purchased by Doctor Hall, was got by the imported horse Slim; my grand dam was got by Old Figure; my great grand dam by Taskers Othello out of Selima, &c. &c. as will more fully appear by William Lyle's attested certificate who raised me. My character as a racer is well established; I won the colt's purse at Bladensburg of twenty guineas; I won a fifty guinea purse at Baltimore, a fifty guinea purse at Annapolis and a fifty guinea purse at Hagerstown. I never lost a race but the last I run at Alexandria, which was owning to my being badly shod, as I lost all my plates before I got in. I am in fine plight, sound in every respect; my offspring are in great repute, some of which are now in training for the turf—procure me good stands and entertainment and I am able to earn one thousand dollars per annum.

Any person inclining to buy or rent may know the terms by applying to John Carnan (Lovehall) Cœcil county and state of Maryland, eight miles south of Elkton.

VERGENNES, February 14.

On the 9th inst. Lyon left the goal of this city accompanied by about 15 sleighs and 5 lumber boxes, with persons from one to five in each. Very great concern appeared lest he should be taken with new process. It was not wanting for seditious expressions and practices that this was not his fate; for in his late address on his lottery scheme he does not hesitate to assert that law, Judge, Jury, and government, are "usurped power." He was in such perturbed hurry, as to leave his great coat and clothes, though it rained, and his Dulcinea behind him to muse upon her own ire. The moment he was released, fearing the arm of the law for seditious practices or in behalf of his merciless creditors would be laid upon him, he exclaimed, "I am on my may to Congress." Surrounded by a group of faithful demo's, he was hurried into the street, where a sleigh was ready to receive him, and was driven off with such precipitation that a number, who had come 50 or 100 miles to see their leader in sedition had not so much as one glance to bless their longing eyes! One of his company, as soon as they passed the street of houses, in attempting to huzza for Lyon, the vessel losing its ballast, fell over board, but though seas over, was not drowned! A report and probability exist, that sedition is so unpopular and the first essays meet with no better reward, and law is not asleep, that he will no more return to Vermont!

"And each repeat a loud Amen!!!"

February 21.

Through various channels, of first credibility, we learn that Mr. Lyon, after leaving the jail of this city, had the consummate effrontery to hoist, in his sleigh, the French flag, as he rode through the several towns where his electors chiefly reside. This is explanatory of his political sentiments, and shews how well his views accord with the Virginian patriots!

"What happier natures shrink at with affright,
The hardy Lyon will contend is right."

When he arrived an Bennington, the schoolmaster dismissed his scholars, one of whom, as may justly be presumed, from the puerility of the composition, addressed the "man on his way to Congress." and the muse of chaotic harmony warbled her slander and her hero's fame!

SUFFIELD, MARCH 5.

THE affairs in Europe have not altered their late complexion. The speech of the king of England to his parliament is full of dignity and superiority. That kingdom, which the superficial have pronounced as fast tottering to its fall, still is firm, unshaken as mount Atlas Every part of the nation appears to enjoy an unrivalled, unprecedented state of success, wealth, and prosperity.—France bites her own chains and prays on her own vitals. Both the Directory and Council of 500 are filled up with traitors to each other. Their frequent denunciations declare to the world how little they feel of fraternal love or republican liberty. It softens not the sorrows of the deluded captive to hear his chains called the dear bands of fraternity and the imprescriptible rights of man. The Belgians have dared to complain of the yoke, which galls them beyond tolerance. They struggle, as the roused lion in the net, to deliver themselves from French equality and unheard of usurpation. The voice of the political seer will dare to pronounce, that the virtuous struggles of the oppressed will ere long, crown their exertions with success. The conquered provinces will not always be tame as the jackdaw, and like the unsuspecting lamb," lick the hand that is raised to shed their blood." Brune, the General in Italy, has displaced three of the Italian Directory and several of the Roman representatives! O! what rare government! precious liberty! The mouth of their cannon is the oracle of reason, and the point of the bayonet the argument of sansculottes! How well this agrees with the fine speeches of Frenchmen, with promises of delivering the oppressed, and making the world happy!

From the Farmer's Weekly Museum.

AN AUTHOR'S EVENINGS.

Dr. Moore has been very fortunate in the selection of a motto for his "View of the causes and progress of the French Revolution;" but it is from a learned language, and from no very perspicious author. Tacitus is his authority, who, in the initial section of his annals, has the following passage, which very aptly describes the conclusion and horrors, incident to a revolution. "Opus opimum casibus, atrox præliis, discors seditioni bus, ipsa etiam pace sævum." I have often been at a loss to determine what appropriate English motto could be found, by an author of a History of the French Revolution. Perhaps the following lines from Hamlet, would fit, in tailor's phrase, tolerably well.

——————" You shall hear
Of cruel, bloody, and unnatural acts;
Of incidental judgments, casual slaughters;
Of DEATHS PUT ON BY CUNNING, AND FORC'D CAUSE;
And in the upshot, PURPOSES MISTOOK,
FALLEN ON THE INVENTORS' HEADS: All this can I Truly deliver."

Horace somewhere speaks of the tardy invention of water drinkers. I will not advocate excess in wine, especially in a learned life, for though Bachus may aid wit and fancy, yet to memory and judgment he is a determined foe. But, such is the great waste of the animal spirits, when an author is engaged in the work of composition, that in the intervals of literary labour, a few glasses glowing in the stomach, will not injure the trains of the mind. A humorous friend, to whom Cheyne's abstemious rules were recommended, replied, classically, in the words, with a slight variation, of Falstaff's boy in Shakespear, "water itself is a good healthy water; but for the man who drinks it, he may have more diseases, than I should care for."

Those who read with interest and attention the more classical, periodical essays of the Augustan age of literature in England, are naturally prone to be curious, concerning the author of a particular essay, with which they may be delighted or informed. Those judiciously inquisitive readers may not find, that Nos. 6. 8. 10 14 28. 103. 160. 195. of "The World," were written by Horace Walpole. Of this great literary character, a judicious critic says with truth, that, "In the walk of grave, sarcastic humour, and ironical pleasantry, he was equalled only by Swift."

In the works of an elegant critic, little known among the generality of readers, I found and admired, last evening the following beautiful encomium upon the author of Othello and Hamlet. The reign of Queen Elizabeth produced Shakespeare, that master of human nature and human life; that prodigy of invention and imagination; that commander of the sublime, the pathetic and the comic; that painter of eternal passions, and eternal manners; that miracle of description, moral wisdom and deep penetration; and that treasure of pure poetry.

I ever admired the fine talents and the ardent loyalty of my lord Falkland, celebrated, by the pen of Hume, for his attachment to the unfortunate cause of Charles I. This nobleman; a genuine descendant from the Beauclere family, was a fine scholar and the mirror of courtesy, and therefore scorned the political leveller, and the "presbyterian sour," who presumed to cabal and to contend against government. Of the Falklands, it is observed, by a vigorous writer, that they were a family devoted to literature, through four generations. Learning, loyalty, and courtesy, are an excellent trio. I wish that their alliance were more common. The cant of democracy, the nudity of sans culottism, and the whine of the dissenter, would then cease; and every base particle of society would remain in the lowly station, assigned by nature.

UNION WITH IRELAND.

On this important and intereſting queſtion a pamphlet has lately appeared in Dublin under the title of Arguments for and againſt the Union conſidered, from which our readers muſt, we are convinced, be gratified with ſome extracts. The following are the obſervations of this author, on the general advantages in point of national ſtrength to be derived from an union of the two countries:

France well knows the principle and the force of incorporations. Every ſtate which ſhe unites to herſelf ſhe makes part of her empire one and indiviſible, and will not ſuffer any mention to be made in negotiation of reſtitution. Whilſt in her affected plans of policy for the liberties of the Britiſh empire, ſhe maintains the principle of ſeparation as eſſential to freedom; ſhe conſidered the union of England and Scotland as an uſurpation of the former; and leaving England to her fate would make Scotland and Ireland ſeparate republics. France well knows the adage, dum ſinguli pugnant, univerſi vincuntur; and ſhe has played that game ſucceſsfully. But as we wiſh to check the ambition of that deſperate and unprincipled power, and if that end can only be effected by maintaining and augmenting the power of the Britiſh empire, we ſhould be favorable to the principle of union, which muſt increaſe and conſolidate its reſources.

If an union may be deſirable between two independent kingdoms, it muſt be moſt deſirable when two ſuch kingdoms are united under one ſovereign, and have ſeparate legiſlatures; for they have all the diſadvantages without the advantages of an union. The ſovereign muſt reſide in one of the kingdoms: there would of courſe be the metropolis of the empire; there would be the real ſeat of the government; thence would flow all the counſels; and thither would reſort thoſe who wiſhed for favour and emolument. The kingdom where the monarch did not reſide, not having the origination of all counſels and meaſures, and having much of its rents carried away by abſentees, would be in a perpetual ſtate of jealouſy and diſcontent; and being ſeparate in all reſpects but in the individual perſon of the monarch, would be a prey to foreign faction; and an empire thus compoſed could never be in a ſtate of full ſecurity, for there never could be a certainty that all parts of it would purſue the ſame ſyſtem.

The objections to this predicament were ſo ſtrong in Scotland before the union, that the Scots brought in a bill of ſettlement, to provide that their monarch ſhould never be the ſame perſon as the king of England; upon this the alternative of Union or Separation became inevitable, and at length they wiſely preferred the former.—What has been the conſequence? The Scotch, becoming entitled to all the privileges of Britiſh ſubjects, have greatly added to their own civilization, and wealth; have enjoyed internal tranquility and ſecurity, and enabled Great Britain by the conſolidation of the whole iſland under one government, to reach that height of proſperity and glory, which makes her the envy and the proteƈtreſs of Europe.

In the ſituation which Scotland held previous to the union does Ireland ſtand at preſent; except that the crown of Ireland is by expreſs ſtatutes of declaration and recognition perpetually annexed to and dependent upon the crown of England; ſo that whoever is king of England, is in right of that title ipſo facto, king of Ireland. The king of Ireland, as the king of Scotland before the union, reſides in another kingdom. The counſels for the government of Ireland are framed in the Britiſh cabinet; the government of Ireland is actually adminiſtered by a Britiſh lord lieutenant, who diſtributes the patronage of the crown; the Iriſh parliament is ſuppoſed to be in a great degree ſubject to Britiſh influence, and near one million of the rents of the kingdom are annually exported to abſentees. The jealouſies upon theſe points are great and unavoidable, and form the perpetual topic for inflaming the minds of the people in newſpapers, and the unvarying theme of complaint and invective by parliamentary oppoſition. Nor can this inconvenience ceaſe whilſt affairs remain as at preſent; for ſo long as we form part of the Britiſh empire, we muſt acknowledge one executive power, one preſiding cabinet; and it is of indiſpenſible neceſſity for that cabinet to induce every part of the empire to purſue the ſame principles of action, and to adopt the ſame ſyſtem of meaſures, as far as poſſible; and as the intereſts of England muſt ever preponderate, a preference will be always given to her, or ſuppoſed to be given, which has the ſame effect. The Iriſh parliament is certainly in its inſtitution independent; it may when it pleaſes act contrary to the policy of the empire; it may exhort the king to make war when the views of England are pacific; it may declare againſt a war when England is driven into one by neceſſity; and it has actually aſſerted a right to chooſe a regent of its own appointment, diſtinct from the regent of Great Britain; it may alſo declare againſt treaties, and refuſe to ratify commercial articles. Now if Ireland, having theſe powers, ſhould at any time exert them in oppoſition to the conduct of England, the empire would be endangered or diſſolved; and ſo long as the parliament of Ireland, from motives of diſcretion and prudence, does not exert them, it will be ſubject to the imputation of being meanly and corruptly ſubſervient to the Engliſh cabinet; and the imputation being conſtantly repeated, and always liable to be renewed, will have in future, as it has had already, a prejudicial influence on the public mind, leading the people to diſtruſt and diſparage their legiſlature.

December. 15.

Intelligence from Paris, ſaid to be received yeſterday, was ſpoken of with the utmoſt confidence laſt night, in ſome of the firſt circles of real and authentic communication. According to theſe, Liſle, in Flanders, is not the only part that has declared its enmity to the governing powers; and in the capital itſelf they are daily under apprehenſion of freſh and the moſt alarming commotions.

Four thouſand Auſtrian officers, who ſerved to the army employed in Italy againſt Buonaparte in his conqueſt of that country, have been diſmiſſed the ſervice, upon ſomething more than the ſuſpicion of having been in the pay of the French directory.

LORD NELSON.

At the latter end of laſt year, this gallant officer received a penſion of a thouſand pounds per annum in conſequence, as was ſaid, of the loſs of his arm, but in fact as a ſmall recompence for a whole life of danger, hardſhip, enterprize, and ſervice. Previous to the iſſuing of the grant a poſitive cuſtom required, that he ſhould diſtinctly ſtate his ſervices to his majeſty. The following is the memorial which was delivered in upon the occaſion:

To the king's moſt excellent majeſty, the memorial of Sir Horatio Nelſon, K. B. and rear admiral in your majeſty's fleet,

HUMBLY SHEWETH.

That, during the preſent war, your memorialiſt has been in four actions with the fleets of the enemy, viz. on the 13th and 14 of March 1795; and the 13th July 1795—and the 14th of February 1797; in three actions with frigates; in ſix engagements againſt batteries; in ten actions in boats employed in cutting out of harbors; in deſtroying veſſels, and in taking three towns. Your memorialiſt has alſo ſerved on ſhore with the army four months, and commanded the batteries at the ſiege of Baſtia and Calvi. That during the war he has aſſiſted at the capture of ſeven ſail of the line, ſix frigates, four corvettes, and eleven privateers of different ſizes; and taken and deſtroyed near fifty ſail of merchant veſſels; and your memorialiſt has actually been engaged againſt the enemy upwards of one hundred and twenty times. In which ſervice your memorialiſt has loſt his right eye and arm, and been ſeverely wounded and bruiſed in his body. All of which ſervices and wounds your memorialiſt moſt humbly ſubmits to your majeſty's moſt gracious conſideration.

(Signed) HORATIO NELSON.

October 1797.

From the Political Journal of Hamburgh, for November, 1798.

HOLLAND.—A general and daily increaſing derangement, which clogs the wheels of government in all parts of the political body, and produces a ſtagnation of induſtry and financial operations, forms the characteriſtic features of the Batavian government. The commercial city of Middleburg, followed the example of Amſterdam, declaring itſelf inſolvent, and requeſting ſupport from the national treaſury, after giving a diſtreſsful account of its ruined finances. But the national treaſury itſelf was likewiſe in a calamitous and helpleſs ſituation, and financial derangements were ſtill multiplied, by the council of elders having rejected the conſtitutional reſolution of transforming the debts of the late provinces into national debts.

One of the principal impediments, whereby the operations of the new government, were obſtructed, was the general diſcontent and the diſpleaſure of the people at the proceedings of government, which were not ſeconded, but rather counteracted. Thus the members of a committee, appointed to frame a new code of laws, declined their charge and the directory gave notice hereof to the legiſlative body, enjoining them to uſe coerſive meaſures. Under theſe circumſtances, the Batavian government was newly alarmed by the violent inſurrection in Belgium, which by its extent, duration amd obſtinacy, took ſo menacing an aſpect, that the greateſt part of the French troops in the pay of Holland, were ordered to march from thence againſt the Belgian inſurgents. Strong meaſures were concerted to defend the frontiers of Holland, partly in order to prevent the further ſpreading of the inſurrection, partly to cut off a retreat of the inſurgents into the territory of the Batavian republic. A ſtrong body of troops was therefore collected and ordered to ſtation themſelves on the frontiers.

New loſſes abroad ſoon aſſociated themſelves to the evils of the interior. Two of the beſt Dutch frigates, the Fury of 36 guns and 153 men. and the Wankſamkeed, of 26 guns and 100 men, having on board 287 French ſoldiers, 6000 ſtand of arms, and many other warlike implements, beſide a great quantity of money, had ſcarcely left the Texel on ther way to Ireland, when they became a prey to the Britiſh. Both ſurrendered to the captain of the Britiſh frigate Sirus of 36 guns, the firſt having made but a weak reſiſtance, and the latter none at all.

Laſt month a liſt was made out of the remaining naval forces of Holland, according to which there lay at preſent in the Texel, two ſhips of the line of 74 guns, 6 of 68,3 veſſels of war of 56,2 of 48 and 44 guns, and 8 frigates; in the Maas, 4 ſhips of the line of 74 and 68 guns, and one frigate. Beſides theſe, there were in the ports of Amſterdam and Rotterdam, 8 ſhips of the line and 4 frigates, with ſome ſmall veſſels of war. But of the whole of this marine, part of which only is fit for uſe and ſervice was continually blocked up by the combined Ruſſians and Engliſh fleets, and thus reduced to a paſſive ſtate of inactivity, whereby its exiſtence was rendered almoſt uſeleſs. At Amſterdam, Rotterdam, Hague, Leyden, and other places, the diſcontents of the people manifeſted themſelves in violent ſpeeches and threats, and notwithſtanding the military force being on the ſide of the ruling party, the latter ſaw itſelf daily expoſed to the dangers of violent commotions.

 The Eaſtern and Southern Mails had not arrived when this Papor went to preſs.

It is a received principle in law, that a perſon found in poſſeſſion of ſtolen goods, is thereof, of courſe, convicted, unleſs a ſatisfactory account can be given of the manner and means by which they came into his hands.

To impugn the weight of this precedent, a hackneyed ſtory (which has been in uſe on ſuch occaſions, time immemorial) was the other day reſorted to by the counſel for a criminal. It is that of a horſe-ſtealer overtaking a traveller on the road and delivering to him to hold, the horſe he had ſtolen: the purſuers preſently come up, and the receiver, unable to give an account of himſelf, is in due time, hanged.

Mr. Hopkinſon, the deputy attorney general for the county of Philadelphia, very happily remarked, in reply, that more rogues had rode off upon that old, ſpavin'd, windgalled horſe, than had evaded juſtice by almoſt any other ſingle means.

"Rouſe, rouſe thy Lion heart, and fire thy Eagle eye!"

What is become of the admirable National Song, to which this line is the chorus? I ſay, Mr. Wignell, what has become of it? Report ſays, that Collot d'Herbois has become the actual Manager of the Theatre; and if this delightful ſong is ſuppreſſed, it will very naturally be concluded to be true.

MR. FENNO,

It is with pleaſure underſtood that Mr. Peter Helm agrees to ſerve as commiſſioner for the county of Philadelphia—to ſay that he deſerves, on this occaſion the confidence of his fellow citizens, is language too feeble and inadequate to his merits—he has with credit to himſelf, and benefit to the county, ſerved in that capacity before; he has during the moſt trying ſeaſons, voluntarily rendered ſervices which the utmoſt gratitude of the citizens can alone repay—During the fever of 1797 he ſuperintended the hoſpital at the Wigwam and executed the truſt repoſed in him with firmneſs and humanity, any thing that envy or malice can ſay to the contrary notwithſtanding—Certificates now in his poſſeſſion from the higheſt authority warrant the aſſertion. During the calamity of 1798, upon the firſt ſolicitation of the late mayor he undertook the management of the priſon, and the care of the ſick priſoners, thus contending with double danger he undiſmayed and regardleſs of perſonal eaſe and ſafety, never forſook the important charge until the return of the citizens and his ſervices were no longer wanted by the board of inſpectors, whoſe thanks he has received.

Under ſuch circumſtances I conceive it almoſt preſumption in any perſon to oppoſe Mr. Helm's views in this inſtance, indeed I am ſure none will, after they become acquainted with his intentions.

The firmneſs and magnanimity of the Supreme Executive of the United States, and the preparations for War which have been made in our country, have at length brought the proud Rulers of the French Republic to a ſenſe of duty and intereſt:—who, in their turns, have become ſuppliants for Peace. On the wiſdom, as well as firmneſs of the Preſident, the true friends of their country's glory and happineſs, implicitly rely They, however, ſuſpect even theſe laſt indications of a deſire of amity, may be ſome new artifice of Talleyrand, to lull us into a fatal ſecurity, until his Maſters are ready to act in the United States, the ſame ſcenes they have exhibited in Switzerland; and they hope the Government will not relax a ſingle fibre in giving new energies to the preparations for defenſive war, and the eſtabliſhment of a formidable Naval force, until Peace and Amity between the two nations are fully, honorably and permanently eſtabliſhed. VIRGINIA RESOLUTIONS.

On Saturday laſt the governor communicated to the Senate and Houſe of Repreſentatives of this ſtate, the Reſolutions which were paſſed by the Legiſlature of Virginia, in reprobation of certain acts of the Federal Government.

In Senate, they were thrown under the table—And the following reſolution was yeſterday adopted by the Houſe of Repreſentatives, viz.

Reſolved, That as it is the opinion of this Houſe, that the principles contained in the reſolutions of Virginia, relative to certain meaſures of the General Government, are calculated to excite unwarrantable diſcontents, and to deſtroy the very exiſtence of government—they ought to be and they are hereby rejected.

TO THE

Promoters of Literature.

THE managers of the Beula Seminary, impelled by motives of pure morality, having resolved to dispose of the following property by way of LOTTERY, in order to assist them in erecting a convenient building for the accommodation of one hundred students, and the necessary professors in the different departments of science—do offer for sale three hundred and fifty lots in BEULA, each fifty-eight feet by one hundred and twenty-five, at twenty dollars per ticket, each ticket entitled to a lot to be determined by ballot; ten dollars to be paid on receipt of the ticket, and the remaining ten on the delivery of the deed. The ballot to take place before impartial men, as soon as the whole number of tickets are sold.

The managers, anticipating the difficulty of obtaining cash for the whole, have resolved to receive an equivalent, for some of the lots. in select books; philosophical apparatus, or in produce and materials for building, delivered on the spot.

It may be observed, that the value of prizes in this lottery will be more than double the amount of all the tickets; for 350 lots, would at their average estimation, produce at least 15,750 dollars; whilst, according to the present proposals, the sum obtained for them will be only 7,000 dollars.

Tickets may be had during this winter, of Morgan J. Rhees, president of the board of managers, no. 177, south Second-street, Philadelphia; who will receive proposals and plans for the erection of the building. It is intended to be of brick or stone; its situation on the summit of a gradual rising eminence, commanding an extensive prospect of the surrounding country; an observatory to be on its top.

Land and out lots in the vicinity of the Town may be had on moderate terms by applying as above. Mechanics and laborers, of good morals will meet with encouragement.
